

COVID report from Örebro, Sweden

- a) there seems to be considerably less persons carrying infection
- b) this year and the next will be a prolonged continuation of the global pandemic
- c) life will not return to a new normal earliest 2024: 2025 globally
- d) the big reset is happening, as one will recognise in the last half of this decade

There seems to be considerably less persons carrying infection.

Before Xmas, I was reckoning that up to about 80% of all persons I saw in shops had the form of 'Qi infection' ; that is the virus coming into the outer immunity in a non-aggressive manner and at a level in which the body's immunity was able to hold it in 'latency' kind of wondering what it was, trying to analyse it and make some kind of effective response.

In the last days, I have had difficulty finding any such 'carriers'. So, this means whatever is happening IN THE GENERAL POPULATION (in that many people are working from home; but most are going out and about as needed) is working.

HOWEVER, the virus is hanging around in the air. It loves to take habitat in dampy places and in cold dampy air. This is essentially the type of winter we have here now. A bit cold, some minus degrees, but mainly damp. The winter cold of minus degrees traps the virus and it becomes hidden in the cold-damp air.

As the temperature becomes warmer, this damp + its guest virus will be released. If the weather quickly moves into a warm Spring, the virus will decrease.

If the Spring weather continues to be dampy, rainy cold ..... there will be an increase of the virus as it will linger around in the air, which will become the medium for transmission and contagion within population groups will increase.

Rather unfortunately, the weather for the coming year is of a changeable damp nature, moving into cold upon the damp in the second half of the year (August - Jan 2022).

This implies one will expect that the virus will continue pretty much unchecked during this year, with the same flux of societies, groups, nations and borders opening and closing throughout the year of 2021

This year and the next will be a prolonged continuation of the global pandemic

Although larger numbers of the population will be vaccinated during the year, this will merely slow down or lessen the spread of the contagion. Practically, those countries with larger populations will not be able to vaccinate larger enough numbers to make a significant difference and many countries (i.e. (those '3rd world ones' with very large populations and less efficient organisational infra-structure) will have only just begun the process towards the latter part of 2021.

This means that vaccination to be effective in Europe, (USA ?) plus other 1st/2nd world countries will not be achieved until somewhere through / towards the end of 2022. And globally, not until 2023.

Such economies will not really start to pick up until the Spring of 2022; maybe some during Autumn 2021 dependent upon the efficiency of local strategies of vaccination and the establishment of new orders of social living. Smaller countries who are able to more clearly define entry through their borders will do better.

The other, 3rd world, countries will pick up about 1 year later, so 2022 – 2023, as written, due to questions of logistics and practical management. One can already see the devastation caused in countries as USA and Brazil due to pure, dumbness as ignorance, political manoeuvring and the ensuing incompetence to make cohesive national efforts.

Whereas the climatic energies of 2021 give harbour to the nature of the virus, 2022 and 2023 support its eradication. 2021's weather will be more damp and cold in nature, remembering that is the virus's nature: clingy, sticky, stubborn; seemingly not so aggressive, very often not giving significant reactive symptoms; seeping into the body, then taking a strong presence. This is the characteristic of damp, as fog or mist, in nature.

2022 will be a year of 'Wind and Warm', that is movement and heat which move stagnation and stuck lingering wet and, thus, clearing the virus both from within the body and the environment; note that wet washing on a line dries more quickly through the wind or that combination of wind and warmth.

2023 will be a further continuation of similar, the weather being of 'Dry and Fire'. The year will, however, tend to be characterised by dynamic movement from one season to another, due to build up of atmospheric tensions. This will give tend to give wet, stormy periods possibly with thunder at the time of seasonal change; but also with longer periods of dryness and the tendency for forest fires, dependent upon geographical location.

This year could easily be that which becomes the worst yet for wild fires, if the lessons of the previous years have not been learnt in terms of forest and land management.

2024 will be a return to energies of damp and cold and it is essential that both as individual countries and a united planet a complete or integrated resolve to the coronal viral problem have been found before this year commences.

Those societies or countries who have not achieved this will find a further even more severe round of the virus re-appearing which will effectively decimate the population group. Do not think about that possibility that it is not under control at a global level; it would be that deciding year in which the human race no longer need worry about over-population in the future.

Life will not return to a new normal earliest 2024

If one further takes into consideration the energetic and social characteristics of these years, one can note that 2022 gives the possibility for the returning of a (new) normalcy within society and the stimulation of economic activity in those social groups who have been able to adapt into a new ways of communal living and working.

Most countries, and the world as a whole, will not at all be ready for such, as written above: the vaccination of sufficient numbers to create both an 'aura' of safety, as well as a supposed or real group immunity will not happen until the end of 2022 for the more developed nations and 2023 for those others.

So, again, it will only be those nations of smaller populations, with more defined borders or as islands who might manage this.

This implies that 'recovery' or 'growth into new norms' will not begin on an international level until 2023 and 2024 on a global level. Economically, 2024 will be 'business in the new normal' for some; with 2025, that possibility of the globe as a whole.

The big reset is happening, and one will recognise this in the last half of this decade

As the planet moves out of this period of global distress and upheaval, it would have been a journey of about 5 years. It will definitely be a time which is a defining period within most of our lives, if not for anything else than a all-embracing disturbance of normal social life and personal daily routines.

A time, maybe quite uncommon for many, which gave the possibility for a deeper consideration to the purpose of their own lives, the significance of relationships and even the bigger meanings of life itself.

However, the bigger story which might only be fully comprehended in the history books of the future, will be that this was the 'big reset'. One might have imagined that this was to be a singular or combined apocalyptic event, even as written in Revelations in the Bible as a series of events, of disaster of nature, which will bring the ending of life on the planet.

But reading in history, great societies and empires have not been seen to collapse or undergo transformational change into other ways of living or another form of governance in such momentary happenings; rather over much longer periods of decline, gradually and with a number of catalytic periods, each often brought forward by a singular event.

This is happening now. This is one of those more major catalytic events, brought upon us through a singular virus which emanated from somewhere within our human societies. And our response as individuals, as separate nations and as a collective, but not unified, planet a description of our ability to comprehend whom we are as a species, what we are doing here and how we should manage ourselves and the planet.

It will not be the only reset; it will not be the big or biggest one on a planetary level. But, it will be a major one in terms of our possibility to change of our ways of being, living and working as social groups.

These will appear, we will be part of them, involved in their creation during those years of the end of this decade.
